BROOKLYN'S APPORTIONMENT.

ARGUMENTS BEFORE THE SUPREME COURT.

STRONG REASONS AGAINST THE GERRYMANDER -ASKING FOR A MANDAMUS TO COMPEL A REDISTRICTING-JUDGE BARTLETT

RESERVES HIS DECISION. Arguments were heard by Judge Bartlett, in the Supreme Court, yesterday, upon the application by Colonel A. D. Baird and other members of the Brook-lyn Union League Club living in the new Vth Asembly District, who feel outraged by the gerry mander by the Board of Supervisors in the recent re apportionment, for a writ of mandamus to compel the Board to meet and make an apportionment according State Constitution. The relators were repre sented by United States District Attorney Johnson Benjamin F. Blair, E. H. Hobbs and F. E. Barnard. The equasel for the respondents included Corporation Counsel Jenks, John B. Meyenborg, Thomas E. Pear sall, W. T. Gilbert and R. B. Greenwood. On behalf of the relators, Mr. Blair argued that the inequality of representation in the new Assembly dismade the action of the Supervisors void. In the fixth District, formed of the Twelfth Ward, there were only 31,685 inhabitants, while in the Vth Dis-trict, composed of the Seventh, Nineteenth and Twentieth wards, there were 102,805. The population of any two jof these wards is in excess of the average, if the county is divided into eighteen equal districts. The law declared that no elector should be disfranchised, but this was a practical disfranchisement of the electors in the Vth District, as they did not have the same representation that the voters in other districts had.

An elaborate argument for the relators was made by Mr. Johnson. He claimed that the Supervisors in their action had not complied with the provisions of the Apportionment act as defined and limited by the State Constitution. If they had acted in such a way as to perform the duty imposed upon them the motion his wife and went to Sloux Falls, S. D., a few months mandamus must be denied, but if they had falled in their duty the mandamus must issue. first point against the apportionment as made was that it was vold by reason of gross inequality in the population of the several districts. The most flagrant example of this was in the Vth District, where the seventh and Twentieth wards had 65,610 population, or 10,000 more than what the average should be, and to this another great ward was added.

To attach to wards having such a population auother large ward, bringing the population to almost double what the average population should be, and giving the beneat of the excess to other districts by reducing their population, is simply a grab, a violation principles of representative government, and of government is a failure and an overcunning inent for fraud.

The provision of the law in regard to dividing into districts, Mr. Johnson held, undoubtedly meant to di-vide equally, and he quoted many authorities to sus-The law of the State provides that no person shall be disfranchised except by law or the judg-ment of his peers; but if the division of districts made by the Supervisors stands, the relators are deprived of three-quarters of their suffrages.

The presentation of this question in a court of justice devolves on it one of the most solemn dutle ever imposed on a court. The question which is before it is whether or not this is such a government that the right of representation can be debased or practically taken away without any infringement of the rights reserved to citizens. We need not ignore the fact that there is something of politics in this. What would be said of an act that gave the wards of this city voting with the minority party three aldermen each, and the other wards one each, and giving the aldermen the power to elect a Mayor and govern There is nothing in the Constitution the city? about the Board of Aldermen. Yet there is nothing in the fact that this is a Government by representation, and in the fact that citizens cannot be disfranchised, that would prevent such gross and On the point of the equal division by law Mr.

"But it may be said that there is an express provision in the Constitution that the Legislature in constituting the Senate districts and in apportioning Assemblymen to each county, shall do so according population, and there is no such provision as to the action of the Supervisors. We submit that the Court will go far not to find that a limitation which was put on the Legislature does not exist as to as adopted in 1874, in connection with Section 5 as adopted in 1846, it will be seen that the change here referred to was not the only change made. The form, phrasing and entire arrangement of the section was essentially modified.

"The omission of any clause in the original section has no signification, coming as it did from a rewriting of the whole article.

"The initian scielles of Newark have decided to have a parade on September 7, and afterward go to New appendix on September 3, and a parade on September 3, and a parade on September 3 are arranging for a parade and plente in honor to the discovery of America.

A meeting of conlagents will be held in Newark on September 3 to consider the question of raising the price of coal.

"We must obviously construe the Constitution as we now find it as a whole. The next point made by Mr. Johnson was that the action of the Supervisors was void because in many cases a town was divided so as to be in two ditricts. This involved the validity of the action of the Aldermen in changing the boundaries of wards which are towns for election purposes. This action he held was clearly ineffective, as a non-constitutional body like the Common Council had no power over the units of the body politic which the towns were under the Constitution.

He held that the Legislature could not devolve on the Common Council the power to merge that district into another similar district, or to divide it, or to add to it or take from it. It is certainly th law of this state that legislative powers cannot be delegated by the Legislature unless there is found in the Constitution express authority for so delegating. The county towns were protected against division is the apportionment, and it was absurd to hold that the wards were not protected in the same way.

Towns were obviously thus protected because they were units for all election purposes, and not because they were more or less corporations. They were thus protected in order that the boundaries of As-sembly districts should run by old and familiar landmarks, and that the inhabitants in these familiar divisions should not be, and elections therein should not be, embarrassed by an imaginary line, on either side of which political power must be exercised with different associates and different results.

Mr. Johnson said that a monumental wrong would be perpetrated under the shadow of right if the present apportionment were permitted to stand, Judge Bartlett put two or three pointed question in regard to the similar injustice to voters under the former apportionment and expressed a doubt as whether a mandamus was the proper remedy to be

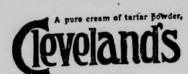

For the respondents, Corporation Counsel Jenks argued at length. He claimed that nothing could be read into the law that was not in the letter of it and that as the State Constitution as recast in 1874 left out the provision for the equitable division of the population in the Assembly districts in it in 1846, that therefore the supervisors had a perfect right to divide the county as they pleased. All the required was that there should be as many districts as there were Assemblymen allotted to the county, which was the unit of representation. He contended that the relators were not disfran chised, as they each had opportunity to vote for member of Assembly. Whatever the number of the inhabitants may be within his district, he casts his the district contains 30,000 or 100,000 population this is true of each voter regarded as an individual. In other words, his county has proportionate repre-James Owen O'Connor, whose impersonations of for one, whatever the population of the district. The Supervisers had complied with all the provisions of the law, and there was no ground for the mandamus to issue. As to the power to divide wards, it was especially conferred by the Legislature, and the wards were not towns in any such sense as had been held, and they were not divided contrary to law in setting off the districts by the Supervisors. In conclusion, Mr. Jenks said:

"My proposition is that the Supervisors have divided the county into Assembly districts of convenient and configuous territory to the number of Assemblymen apportioned by the Legislature to the county, and that they have duly filed the certificate required by the Constitution, that they have in all things obeyed the Constitution, and particularly they have no divided any town in the formation of these districts. That having thus obeyed the law their action is final. That a mandamus will not issue to make them change their determination in that it was a discretionary power vested in them, not subject to may review, and that no mandamus can be issued within the scope of such writ, because it could do no more than to order them to do what they have already done." ready done."

Judge Bartlett put a query as to whether the action already taken by the Supervisors was not final and conclusive, and thus not to be set aside by the courts. Briefs were submitted by counsel and decision was reserved.
